If you have recently made a purchase that still has the tags on or is in a new condition and it within the usual 28 day return period then you might want to consider returning it to get some money freed up.

An intra-day trader is an investor who doesn't only limit themselves to same-day trading. Intra-day trading (or short term trading) doesn't have the same limitations and restrictions as day trading. Investors in bitcoin and cryptocurrencies can easily start this trading method even with a small amount of capital. The biggest notable difference between the two is that a day trader only profits on small price fluctuations while an intra-day trader profits by holding the positions for a number of days, hoping for the profit to be bigger.
